The Theremin

The theremin is an electronic musical instrument. It was invented by a Russian inventor, Léon Theremin, in 1920.

The theremin doesn't look or sound like a traditional musical instrument. It looks like a radio. To play the theremin, a person moves their hands around the two metal antennas that stick out from it.

The sound changes depending on how quickly the person moves their hands and how close their hands are to the instrument.

Sometimes it sounds like a violin. Other times it sounds like a horn. Its unique sound is used in music, movies, TV shows, and video games.

As you move your hands around the antennas, the sound changes depending on how quickly you move your hands and how close your hands are to the instrument.

The theremin looks a lot like a radio or an Internet router.
