Listen and say

Next day

Mike: What did Betty do last winter?

John: Not much. She doesn't like the cold weather.

Mike: That's too bad. I love winter!

John: She didn't play in the snow. She went to her friend's house and played computer games.

Mike: Which season does she like the most?

John: I don't know but I guess she likes spring. Why do you want to know?

Mike: I want to teach her how to snowboard.

John: Oh, really? I'll tell her when I see her this afternoon. Maybe she'll change her mind about winter.

Mike: Hi, John. Did you see Betty yesterday?

John: Yes, I told her that you wanted to teach her how to snowboard.

Mike: Good. What did she say?

John: She said it would be great. She was excited.

Mike: Awesome! I'll call her tonight.

John: Sounds good. See you later.

Mike: Yeah, see you.

Read and understand

The earth has four seasons. These seasons are winter, spring, summer and autumn. Different parts of the earth have seasons at different times. When it's winter in Asia, it's summer in New Zealand and Australia.

While Korean kids are playing in the snow, Australian kids are playing at the beach. While Korean kids are learning how to ski and snowboard in the snow, Australian kids are learning how to surf and water-ski at the beach. Some children never play in the snow because it doesn't snow where they live.

Different seasons allow us to learn many different things. It is important to learn new things. We can learn something new each season.
