

The Hunter's Help

Audio

12

Is something wrong with your ears? They're so big!

No, I can hear you better with big ears.

Little Red Cap finds that Grandma's door is open. The wolf is lying there with the blanket up to his nose. Something is strange. Grandma's ears are very big. Her eyes and teeth are big, too. Oh, no! The wolf gobbles up Little Red Cap.

The wolf is very full. He falls asleep. He begins to snore loudly. A hunter in the woods hears and finds the wolf in Grandma's house. He thinks that maybe the wolf ate Grandma. He finds some scissors and cuts open the wolf. He saves Little Red Cap and her grandmother. Little Red Cap will always listen to her mother now!

What should I do?

You can use scissors to cut open the wolf.

Do you mind if I keep the wolf's fur?

Not at all.

Choose Your Words

You can change what a sentence means by the way you say it. Saying one or two words louder and stronger makes people notice those words. This can tell listeners what you want them to hear or notice.

Practice

Say this sentence three times. Choose a different word to say louder and stronger each time.

The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog.

C Say these sentences three times. Choose a different word to say louder and stronger each time.

Little Red Cap finds that Grandma's door is open.

The wolf is lying there with the blanket up to his nose.

Something is strange here.

Is something wrong with your ears, Grandma? They're so big!

No, I can hear you better with big ears.

Is something wrong with your teeth, Grandma? They're so big!

No, I can eat you better with big teeth!

After eating the girl, the wolf falls asleep in the bed and begins to snore loudly.

A hunter in the woods hears and finds the wolf in Grandma's house.

The bad wolf ate the old woman. What should I do?

You can use scissors to cut open the wolf.

The hunter cuts open the bad wolf. He saves Little Red Cap and her grandmother.

Thank you, sir! Thank you for saving us!

You are welcome. Do you mind if I keep the wolf's fur?

Not at all. Thank you for saving us.

Little Red Cap, next time . . .

Always listen to your mom.

Yes, I will.

E Now read the script aloud. Practice using the acting tip from p. 28.
